
Essential for child & economic development:

Minnesota's Child Care Assistance Program (CCAP)

CCAP's Basic Sliding Fee allows kids from birth to age 13 to thrive in stable care environments.

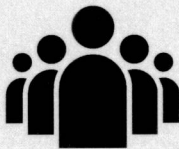

Parents work at all times of the day. Affordable child care should be available for the times of the day and days of the week parents and employers need.

Affordable child care is a two-generation approach to economic security, allowing parents to work and children to succeed.

Minnesota's investment in affordable child care has decreased by 25 percent since 2003 (inflation-adjusted dollars).

Affordable child care allows employers to hire and keep the workers they need.

Affordable child care is key to ensuring Minnesota's robust economy in years to come. It allows families to work their way into economic stability. And it ensures employers can hire and keep the workers they need to grow and help our communities prosper.
